I've got cheap electricity between 23:30 and 05:30, so I've set that up in the myenergi app. I expected the libbi to be 100% charged (or close to) at the end of that period, however I'm seeing once the libbi is charged it doesn't stay charged even though electricity remains cheap : Okay, its not much (6% down), but still unexpected to me.

I understand the Libbi is G100 compliant and therefore is certified to limit output to a set value, but I doubt that control enables the end-user to adjust the settings, it would be your installer's responsibility to complete the necessary declarations and set the Libbi accordingly almost certainly with a locked system or accessed controlled engineers menu.

Libbi will launch with G100-1 G100-2 will follow once testing is complete (the new standard is complex) and the ENA have approved it. Libbi is a hybrid system. It can be used a standalone AC battery if you want, but comes with dual PV string inverters.

We created libbi to store your electricity, to use it when you need it most. It allows you to capture as much surplus solar electricity as possible, whilst integrating with your existing myenergi devices. libbi is modular by design. Each module can store up to 5kWh of electricity, so combining 4 of them together would provide up to 20kWh of ...

No response from MyEnergi to my ticket (number earlier in the thread). But I've had no Libbi problems since the issue 9 days ago. I've had various charge levels set, including 100%, and have charged at various times of day by fiddling with the tariff - Octopus keep having free-electricity "Power-ups" during which of course I charge Libbi and the car.
